Abstract:

The main goal of this work is the ambition to introduce deeper base of self-government and territorial self-government with respect to minorities. The goal is not only to determine a notion of self-government which is necessary for deeper analysis of its implementation but very important is to determine the notion of minorities and the notion of national minorities too. National minorities are the major groups of this work. It flows from the reason of this work about analysis of minority participation on territorial self-government in Slovak republic and in Hungary and from the ambition to compare these dates. On the other side it is necessary to determine the notion of identity and interaction between Slovak and Hungarian minorities. This includes determination of history of these two states, their constitution and law about territorial self-government and minority self-government. That was a base for research where we proved the national relationships in territorial self-government are not differentiated with respect to nationality.
